The Honorable John Lewis
Honorary Degree Recipient

As one of the most courageous individuals the civil rights movement has ever produced, John Lewis has dedicated his life to protecting human rights and securing personal dignity. A seven-term Congressman representing the 5th District of Georgia, he has displayed a sense of ethics and morality that has earned the admiration of his colleagues in the U.S. Congress and the general public.

Born the son of sharecroppers from Troy, Alabama, he grew up on the family farm and attended segregated public schools. He earned degrees from Fisk University and from the American Baptist Theological Seminary.

He became involved in the civil rights movement at an early age, and has been part of the vanguard of progressive social movements and human rights struggles in the United States. From organizing lunch counter sit-ins, to participating in the freedom rides and voter registration drives, to helping to create and chair the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), he was a front-line participant in the struggle for racial equality in America. At the age of 23, he was one of the planners and a keynote speaker at the historic March on Washington in August 1963.

As director of the Voter Education Project, Lewis helped transform the nation's political climate and electoral process, by working to add nearly four million minority registered voters. In 1977, President Jimmy Carter appointed Lewis to lead ACTION, the federal agency with 250,000 volunteers in service to America.

John Lewis' first electoral success came in 1981, when he was elected to the Atlanta City Council. He left the council to run for Congress in 1986, and won election to represent Georgia's 5th District, which includes the city of Atlanta, and parts of Fulton, DeKalb, and Clayton counties, and has been re-elected in every election since then.

He has received numerous national awards, including the prestigious Martin Luther King, Jr. Non-Violent Peace Prize. Last fall he was honored as one of the first recipients of the Eleanor Roosevelt Award for Human Rights, presented at the White House commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Jeremy Woodrum
President's Award Recipient

Throughout his undergraduate years, Jeremy Woodrum has embodied the AU tenet of turning "ideas into action, action into service." His leadership, selflessness, and genuine desire to help others have underlined American University's traditional commitment to humanitarian values in a global context.

Jeremy gained considerable attention for the cause of international human rights and social justice as the founder of AU's Free Burma Coalition, a campus club devoted to promoting democracy in that South Asian nation. Under Jeremy's direction, the group has assisted Burmese refugees in Thailand, coordinated with exiles in the United States, and kept the issue alive in the local and national news media. They also organized teaching conferences, fund-raisers, and rallies in support of the cause. Jeremy was a member of the working group appointed by President Ladner to design a code of principles for doing business with Burma, which ultimately gained Board of Trustees approval. For his work Jeremy received the Patrick Stewart Human Rights Award from Amnesty International, and the Petra Kelly Memorial Prize from AU's School of International Service.

As a program coordinator for the Office of Community Action and Social Justice in the Kay Spiritual Life Center, Jeremy helped establish a creative program known as "Spring Break Away," to provide purposeful alternatives to typical student spring breaks. He led one of these activities to the Texas-Mexico border to study sweatshop labor conditions in the area. He also was president of AU's Eco-Sense club for environmental awareness, and his actions helped gain support for campus recycling efforts. Jeremy was senior class vice president and served a term as a Student General Assembly representative. As a residential assistant in Hughes Hall, he was a respected advisor, counselor, and friend of students. In particular, his public actions and assistance offered to campus friends and family brought comfort to the campus community shocked by the tragedy of the untimely death of AU undergraduate student Matthew Odell during spring semester 1999.

Added to Jeremy's considerable record of service are his academic achievements as an honors student in the School of International Service, earning a 3.8 grade point average in a challenging academic program that combines international studies and economics. He also was a teaching assistant for an economics professor and a lab assistant in the computing center.

Beneath Jeremy's energy, commitment, and dedication to principles is a quiet modesty and unassuming demeanor which conveys his deeply held sincerity, genuine approachability, and heart-felt desire to do good. For defining community service in a campus, local, and international context; working for multicultural understanding and a better world; and earning academic distinction of the highest order, we honor Jeremy Woodrum as the recipient of American University's 1999 President's Award.

Academic Regalia

The history of academic dress dates to medieval European universities of the fourteenth century. Universities originally used the same clerical robe and hood as the religious orders which established them. When universities achieved identity as educational institutions rather than extensions of religious orders, the design and the symbolism of their regalia began to change. Universities in Europe and areas culturally tied to Europe developed colorful gowns and caps and the hood became a designator of degrees earned instead of a piece of headgear.

Many American institutions have adopted caps and gowns incorporating their official colors. American University's distinctive red, white and blue regalia was introduced in 1988. All undergraduates wear the mortarboard cap with a silver tassel that is traditionally shifted from left to right at the end of the commencement ceremony. Undergraduate students who are projected to graduate with Latin honors and/or University Honors wear gold hoods.

Graduate students wear a blue hood lined in red and white with velvet trim to signify their degree or academic field. All master of arts students wear a white-edged hood, except for those in education (light blue) and international service (peacock blue). Gold velvet trim denotes master of science degrees. Other degrees with specific hood trim colors include the Master of Business Administration (drab), Master of Fine Arts (brown) and Master of Public Administration (also peacock blue). Juris Doctor students wear hoods edged with purple, as do those receiving the Master of Laws, who also wear a tam cap in place of the mortarboard.

American University doctoral degree candidates wear the tam with a silver tassel and carry their degree hoods in the processional. They are then "hooded" by their faculty adviser during the commencement ceremony. Members of the faculty generally wear the regalia to which they are entitled by virtue of the degrees they hold. The regalia may denote their alma mater and the field of study in which the highest degree was earned.

Although some universities use different systems, the academic field is usually identified in accord with a standard code of colors used as part of the decoration of doctor's gowns or tassels on caps as well as hood trim. In addition to fields listed above, these include: economics (copper), journalism (crimson), library science (lemon yellow), music (pink), philosophy (dark blue), science (golden yellow) and theology (scarlet).

Commencement Tradition at American University

American University awarded its first degrees (two doctorates and one master's) at a commencement ceremony held in the university's amphitheater in 1916. AU commencements have grown over the years as the university has become larger and more diverse. More than two thousand students from the arts and sciences, business, communication, international service, law, and public affairs participate in commencement ceremonies each year.

The distinguished list of university honorary degree recipients includes U.S. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and William J. Clinton; Nobel Laureates Aung San Suu Kyi, Shimon Peres, and Elie Wiesel; international figures King Hussein, Queen Noor, and Alexander Dubcek; national leaders Andrew Young, Barbara Jordan, Ralph Nader, and Ruth Bader Ginsburg; scholars Stephen J. Gould, John Hope Franklin, Henry Steele Commager, and Alfred Kazin; journalists David Broder, Walter Cronkite, Ted Koppel, and Carl Rowan; and performing artists Marian Anderson and Mstislav Rostropovich, to name a few.
