Academic Regalia

The history of academic dress dates to medieval European universities of the fourteenth century. Universities originally used the same clerical robe and hood as the religious orders which established them. When universities achieved identity as educational institutions rather than extensions of religious orders, the design and the symbolism of their regalia began to change. Universities in Europe and areas culturally tied to Europe developed colorful gowns and caps and the hood became a designator of degrees earned instead of a piece of headgear.

Many American institutions have adopted caps and gowns incorporating their official colors. American University's distinctive red, white and blue regalia was introduced in 1988. All undergraduates wear the mortarboard cap with a silver tassel that is traditionally shifted from left to right at the end of the commencement ceremony. Undergraduate students who are projected to graduate with Latin honors and/or University honors wear gold hoods.

Graduate students wear a blue hood lined in red and white with velvet trim to signify their degree or academic field. All master of arts students wear a white-edged hood, except for those in education (light blue) and international service (peacock blue). Gold velvet trim denotes master of science degrees. Other degrees with specific hood trim colors include the Master of Business Administration (drab), Master of Fine Arts (brown) and Master of Public Administration (also peacock blue). Juris Doctor students wear hoods edged with purple, as do those receiving the Master of Laws, who also wear a tam cap in place of the mortarboard.

American University doctoral degree candidates wear the tam with a silver tassel and carry their degree hoods in the processional. They are then "hooded" by their faculty adviser during the commencement ceremony. Members of the faculty generally wear the regalia to which they are entitled by virtue of the degrees they hold. The regalia may denote their alma mater and the field of study in which the highest degree was earned.

Although some universities use different systems, the academic field is usually identified in accord with a standard code of colors used as part of the decoration of doctor's gowns or tassels on caps as well as hood trim. In addition to fields listed above, these include: economics (copper), journalism (crimson), library science (lemon yellow), music (pink), philosophy (dark blue), science (golden yellow) and theology (scarlet).

The Tradition of Commencement at American University

American University awarded its first degrees (two doctorates and one master's) at a commencement ceremony held in the university's amphitheater in 1916. Over the years commencements have grown and changed as the university has grown larger and more diverse. Today the university marks its 107th commencement. More than 1600 students from the diverse disciplines of the arts and sciences, communication, law, business, public affairs, and international service will participate in commencement ceremonies this spring.

The distinguished list of university honorary degree recipients includes U.S. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and William J. Clinton, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Congresswoman Barbara C. Jordan, editor and publisher Norman Cousins, astronomer Carl Sagan, symphony conductor Mstislav Rostropovich, statesman Alexander Dubcek, ambassador Robert Strauss, author Alex Haley, television journalist Ted Koppel, historian Henry Steele Commager, businessman J. Willard Marriott and economist John Kenneth Galbraith, to name a few.

We take pride in this long and distinguished tradition of commencement as we celebrate the achievements of today's graduating class.

Commencement Speaker

Richard W. Riley

Appointed in 1992 by President Clinton, U.S. Secretary of Education Richard Riley was chosen for his highly successful effort to improve education in South Carolina, where he had been governor for eight years. In his first term as education secretary, he helped launch historic initiatives to raise academic standards; improve instruction for the poor and disadvantaged; expand loans to help more Americans attend college; prepare young people for the world of work; and improve teaching. In his second term, Secretary Riley has continued to work with President Clinton in emphasizing education as a number one priority for America. He has led the fight to equip schools and libraries with Internet access and telecommunications services and was instrumental in winning major improvements in the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Secretary Riley has worked with the Clinton administration to win historic tax cuts and increased grants to aid needy and middle-income families in meeting the costs of higher education. He is an advocate of lifelong learning and is working with Vice President Gore to expand after-school learning opportunities for America's children. One of his top projects has been organizing the America Reads Challenge which uses one million volunteer tutors to help children learn to read independently by the end of third grade. Indicating his belief in America's youth, Riley helped create the Partnership for Family Involvement in Education, which includes over 4,000 groups.

Through his national and state service, Richard Riley has become known for his integrity and principled leadership, as well as his passion for improving education for all children. Born in Greenville County, South Carolina, he graduated cum laude from Furman University, and served as an officer in the U.S. Navy. He received a law degree from the University of South Carolina and was a state representative and state senator between 1963 and 1977. In 1978, he was elected governor and was so popular that South Carolinians amended the state constitution to enable him to run for a second term in 1982. David Broder, columnist for The Washington Post, has called him one of the "most decent and honorable people in public life."

President's Award Recipient

Mary C. Klima

On the basketball court, in the classroom, and in the community, Mary Klima is the epitome of the collegiate scholar-athlete. Through discipline, dedication, and personal commitment, she has achieved an unparalleled combination of accomplishment while maintaining a disarming modesty that has earned her the honor of receiving the 1998 President's Award.

A double major in Business Administration/Law and Society with a 3.91 grade point average, Mary's awards for academic excellence equal her record of athletics achievement. She was one of six national winners of an NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarship for Division I basketball; was one of five members of the 1997–98 GTE Academic All-America First Team; earned the 1997–98 Dean Ehlers Award from the Colonial Athletic Association, the top conference honor that recognizes the highest standards of leadership, integrity, and sportsmanship through academic and athletic achievements; was a CAA Scholar Athlete four times and a CAA All-Academic Team member three times. She was also a member of the Golden Key Honor Society, Beta Gamma Sigma Honor Society, and the Alpha Kappa Psi Professional Business Fraternity.

On the court, Mary finished her playing career as the most decorated women's basketball player in AU history. She set AU records in games started, career rebounds and single season rebounds. Mary also finished among AU's best ever in career points, career scoring average, scoring average per game, points in a season, field goal accuracy, and career games started. For her top-notch play, she was a First Team All-CAA selection twice and a Second Team selection once, and earned CAA Player of the Week honors seven times. As team co-captain, in the 1997–98 season she led the Eagles to their best record ever with 23 wins and 7 losses, and their first post-season tournament appearance and was named AU's 1998 female athlete of the year.

In addition to her academics and athletics, Mary's devotion to others was apparent through her work with AU's SAVVY program (Student Athlete Volunteers Vital for Youth). For the past two years she was a big-sister to a 10-year old inner city youth, developing a relationship that went from tutor to that of mentor and role model, and she regularly tutored young children at the New Community After School Program. Having earned the admiration of faculty, teammates, students, and the AU community, Mary Klima is indeed an exceptional and rare individual, and a deserving winner of the President's Award.
